DMTC Course Descriptions

Diabetes Manager University (DMU)

The DMU is a 3-day master course in how and why to use today's best therapies in a patient-centered, outcomes-oriented model of care.

- ◆ Clinical care and behavioral realities
- ◆ Selection and titration of today's medication choices
- ◆ Nutrition approaches that patients actually USE
- ◆ Added optional half-day on program design and delivery
- ◆ Includes a diabetes self-care experience

Discovering Diabetes™: Program/Curriculum Owners' Update

Are you ready for a booster shot of that unique DMTC purpose and spirit? Are you ready to move your practice and your program to the next level? Then you'll want to join us for:

- Curriculum Owners' Update 2008 – all the new tools and where they fit in a patient-centered, outcomes focused intervention
- Advancing the Art of Diabetes Education: Finding Your Vision and Filling Your Toolbox
- Case Conference (your patients and issues)
- Registration limited to Discovering Diabetes Curriculum owners
- Requires pre-workshop preparation

The Art of Diabetes Education

Where can experienced diabetes educators go for a hands-on workshop to enhance and expand their teaching skills? To this 2-Day Intensive Course in the methods of patient-centered care

- The Role and Importance of Program Vision and Mission and How They Define Our Approach
- Implications of the Chronic Disease Model for Both Individual and Group Instruction
- Discovery Learning Tools and Strategies
- Blood Glucose Monitoring as the Patient's Tool (Practicum)
- Nutrition From a Discovery Learning Perspective (Practicum)

Texts for the course are DMTC's "The Art of Diabetes Education" and "The Art of Empowerment, 2nd Edition by Bob Anderson and Martha Funnell. Requires completion of pre-workshop assignments.

The Business of Diabetes Education

Why are so many diabetes education programs closing in an environment of exploding diabetes prevalence and growing acceptance of preventive approaches to chronic disease? In part, because most diabetes education programs lack sound business plans. And few educators have the business knowledge and skills to develop one. Assure your program's long-term survival by attending this 2-day Intensive Course in how to plan and deliver a profitable diabetes education service. Course texts are the DMTC publication "The Business of Diabetes Education" and Spencer Johnson's "Who Moved My Cheese?" Requires pre-workshop preparation.
